

you play as a guard dog trying to protect their owner from monsters outside their house by barking at them. it would be first person, free roam game that takes place with you mostly outside in the yard.

i want it to be a horror game kinda..., so you would be outside at night.

your owner is asleep at night so their vulnerable to the things outside.

you can scare the things outside by barking at them but they'll quickly come back when your out of site.

if you fail to keep them from going inside the house, your owner will be eaten and you'll get a game over.

if you let them get to close to you without barking, you'll get eaten and will also get a game over.