

“The Roundup”
by: The Team with No Name

You play as a box and you're just chilling until you wake up in a strange room. You do not know where you are but you must escape by any means necessary.

The whole time you are being chased by circles, and their plan is to find all boxes and turn them round. As a box you do not want to become round because being round means losing your sense of self and individuality.

The box has 8 directional movement, but the circles either follow the player, or move back and forth in a linear pattern. Kind of like the World's Hardest Game but not really. If a circle touches you, then you must restart the level.

At the end of the 5 levels is a magic device that will teleport you back home and turn all the circles into squares again.

Game mechanics:

Arrow keys / WASD to move

Space to change colors □□

Shift to run faster

Reach the safe zone to advance to the next level

