

For the final project, i'd like to create another platformer game using my avatar and her backstory. Each door (portal) will lead to a new alternate universe and she must make it past each level without touching any of the triangles (her greatest fear). If i have enough time, i'd like to create my own background music as well.