

Year: August 2nd, 3000

Minutes before the invasion was calm and quiet. Everyone was enjoying their summer and relaxing, everything was normal until a strange portal appeared in the middle of the street. We didn't know what that was at that time. Few people went towards the strange portal when one of the people reached the portal. He was grabbed and was pulled in the portal. People were screaming but the horror didn't end there, Entities were starting to step out of the portal. It was... Bread. At first we were confused and thought that they weren't hostile but we guessed wrong. The bread-like entities were starting to attack people and were eating them alive. Military was called in and started to attack the entities. And the military managed to kill the entities that stepped out. But it didn't end there many more were stepping out of the portal one was extremely fast using a substance that looked like butter. Another entity that stepped out was an entity that seemed to be burnt and yet durable. Those creatures were extremely strong and we were forced to flee.

Very few people managed to escape the entities and were either badly injured or severely injured. Many people who were caught by the entities tried to escape but it was slim to impossible to escape the grasp of the bread. There were rumors that the scientists were building a blue robot that could face the bread but many of the experiments failed but one. When the scientists were finishing building the blue robot they were attacked by the bread. None of the scientists survived. But suddenly the blue robot was powered by an unknown person
