

For my final project, I want to create a long level with my character where it dodges and shoots down enemies coming after it. At the end and if I have time, I would like to add a mini boss at the end where the player can only progress after defeating them. This game will be primarily a platformer and be created in construct two.

