

For my final project, I wanna make a game about a chameleon that is on an adventure to explore new parts of the world, and this is a level example that I would like to make. There are branches that you can latch on and swing on, and golden doors lead to new maps and areas of the world. Chameleon encounters many different enemies depending on where you are in the world, so be aware!